Dear Mr Galalae

Thank you for your appeal emailed to me on 17th June 2009 regarding your expulsion from the Political Philosophy online course.

I have now reviewed your case fully and, having read all the documentation, must tell you that I do not support your appeal. You were expelled from the course on the grounds of breaching the netiquette agreement and, per Mr Healy's letter to you dated 9th June, your fees have now been refunded in full.

As you know, you were allowed temporary access to the course website so that you could find documents to support your appeal. We trust you now have all the documentation you require, and access to the course website will now be withdrawn.

Please let me know in writing if you wish to appeal further to the University authorities, and I will refer the matter on to the University Proctors.

Yours sincerely

Jonathan Michie
